

Katie: kwalters.hosanna@comcast.net

Susan: srdistefano@comcast.net

This week's activities:

Due to computer issues, this week's newsletter is late.

Friday, April 7—Hart Gallery class 10:00. Please be on time!

Saturday, April 8, we're taking a trip to the Sculpture Garden at Montague Park to celebrate its first anniversary. We'll tour the site, see some amazing art, get a chance to meet the artists, and listen to some great music. We'll leave at noon. Let's hope the weather is good!

Above, our residents chow down on ribs, barbecue, and yummy sides at Sugar's Ribs while left, they enjoy a special program for the CABIA support group at the Creative Discovery Museum.

I will keep today's issue rather direct. Although I could spend time on God's blessings and guaranteed love to believers of His promises, pay attention to this truth: His love is eternal and His faithfulness never ends! If you are wondering "so what's your point" or "how does this apply to me?" — that's the reason for this article.. I want my readers to realize thanking and worshipping are not nice things we owe God. I do believe worship isn't something we conveniently fit in on Sunday mornings. It's actually a day-by-day and moment-by-moment choice to acknowledge God as a savior and redeemer, to serve Him to the best of your ability and a time to seek His deep affection toward us. God isn't pleased if we consistently just go through the motions of worship based on attendance. So, regardless of your denomination, church affiliation, or parish that you attend, know that He wants our real, honest, and open hearts as we worship in spirit and truth. I'll close with this suggestion: to know God remember much prayer—much power little prayer—little power no prayer—no power.

ECR

Corner

The Washboard Band performs at Hope House, while right, Connor shows his moves in the "chicken dance"!

