Congratulations to Ian Barber—he is now employed part-time in the Erlanger Hospital parking garage.

Today, I'm offering you a couple of quotes that should be significant for many. I would like to reiterate a belief that I hold strong in my heart that was taught to me by my eternal friend and high school teacher, Gordon Conell: "Where there is a will, there is a way." After I arose from being sedated in a coma for nine months, Gordon repeated those words to my mother. Now, although he didn't tell me the following quote, and even though it's not a scriptural verse, I believe both he and you will agree when you read this: "Excuses are for people who don't want something badly enough." So into which category do YOU fall? Are you someone with a strong will who wants something badly enough to make it happen? Or are you someone who just can't make the effort and makes excuses instead?
