As we celebrate and observe "Memorial Day" by recognizing servicemen killed in war, I hope to provide you with a lesson worth your remembering and making efforts to act upon.

Admittedly, I often recommend/suggest the importance of remaining humble and kind to others with your daily habits. A habit of remaining positively complimentary certainly proves wonderful for all. Well, let me be just a little more detailed. Now, this is a personal choice, but one offering ongoing happiness, so I'll give my complete confidence in this suggestion: In your dealings with other people, make an effort to avoid being: condescending, critical, judgmental, mean, negative, rude, sarcastic and untruthful.

While I've been preparing a sermon on remaining humble and kind in an effort to enjoy eternal life, I found a poem by Helen Rice, "This is My Prayer," that follows my theme and point today. Please read and think about the following ...

This is My Prayer

Bless me, heavenly Father,
forgive my erring ways,

Grant me strength to serve Thee,
put purpose in my days ...

Give me understanding,
enough to make me kind

So I may judge all people with my heart and not my mind ...

And teach me to be patient
in everything I do,

Content to trust Your Wisdom and to follow after You ...

And help me when I falter
and hear me when I pray

And receive me in Thy Kingdom to dwell with Thee some day.
